Foreword

It is my proud privilege to bring out the 65th edition of 'Crime in India' namely CII-2017, an annual publication of National Crime Records Bureau. Since its inception in 1953, this has been the principal reference document on Crime Statistics in our country. Over the past decades, this report has become one of the most awaited publications of NCRB.

NCRB has undertaken extensive revision in the proforma so as to make the report more informative and useful for the parliamentarians, policy makers, States/UTs, researchers, academicians and other various stakeholders. The scope and coverage of the report has significantly improved as NCRB has attempted to capture the emerging trends and patterns of crime. Owing to the detailed data collection proforma, the clubbing of crimes under 'Other' IPC & SLL have been reduced so as to have better visibility. The publication is now more detailed as compared to previous years.

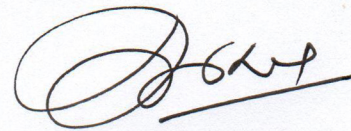

The information on the newly emerging crimes in the country is of paramount importance as it would enable policy makers and law enforcement authorities to plan crime prevention strategies and appropriate interventions and measures for the future. Being the principal reference document for crime statistics in India, it will facilitate evidence based policy making and also provide thinking platform to social scientists, criminologists and officials of criminal justice system in the country.

Following the comprehensive revision in the proforma, the software development team of the Statistical Branch worked with utmost dedication in developing a new user-friendly data collection and compilation software, which facilitated data entry in multilingual form both at the level of police stations and districts. Furthermore, the newly developed software will also enable States to generate State level report on the pattern of 'Crime in India'. The staff of the Bureau therefore deserve my appreciation for working assiduously with passion to publish this edition.

I sincerely acknowledge the co-operation extended by the State Crime Records Bureaux/CID of the States/UTs for their efforts and valuable support in sending the data under the revised formats and in its validation.

I look forward to further suggestions and feedback for improvements in the content and quality of future reports.
